Washington Still in Air on Airship

Nothing Done Yet by County Seat Town on Feature Attraction.

The Wright brothers' airship is still in the air as far as the Washington Centennial is concerned. After nearly three hours' session Wednesday the directors of the association decided that they could not see their way clear to guarantee the paying of the $5,000 required to bring the airship to the county seat centennial week until the money was raised and in their hands. However, an individual effort will be made by the members of the association within the next few days to raise sufficient funds to secure the airship and also place the association upon a good financial basis.

COAL CARS PILED UP BY WRECK

Head-on Collision at Fayette City Ties up Traffic.

FOUR MEN SLIGHTLY HURT

When a coal train collided head-on with a train of empties on the Arnold City branch of the P. and L. E. railroad at the north end of Fayette City yesterday, two engines and many cars were damaged and traffic was tied up for five hours. Four persons were injured, but none seriously. The injured are:

Engineer Jesse Wadsworth and C. C. Sprague; Firemen W. H. Douglass and Harry Johnson.

The trains met on a culvert above the West Newton pike and although the rolling stock did not leave the roadbed, coal and debris falling on the pike blocked vehicle traffic. The cause of the accident is not known.

The crews of both locomotives seeing the approaching danger in time, jumped and received but slight cuts and bruises. They were able to assist in clearing away the wreck.

FIVE POLLING PLACES FAVORED FOR DONORA

Commissioners Will Hold Second Meeting Next Week to Formulate Their Report to Court.

Tom P. Sloan, Theo. J. Allen of Charleroi and J. V. Cooper of Fallowfield township, commissioners to investigate the matter of re-division of the voting precincts at Donora have arranged for a second meeting to be held at Donora next Wednesday when they will in all probability formulate their report to the court. They are said to favor five precincts for the borough instead of four as petitioned. The suggestion of the petitioners was to make a division at Second street, Sixth street and at Eighth, making the Eastern and Western boundary lines of the borough the extreme ends of the precincts. The commissioners favored one precinct along the Western end of the borough, so that it would not be necessary for residents of that part of town to come of the hill to vote.

The first meeting was held Wednesday of this week when the commissioners heard testimony and took a tour of the town to ascertain the need of new polling places. They have until the third Monday in August make their report to the court.

FERRYMEN A CENTURY

Dr. Van Voorhis Finds Curious Facts in History of Speers Family.

HISTORY IS INTERESTING

Dr. John S. Van Voorhis of Belle Vernon in his interesting historical references during the bridge freeing ceremonies recently followed the record of ferries from the time the region was first settled, in 1740. It is a curious story, beginning with dug-out canoes and relapsing to that stage after progressive improvement for more than a century. Dr. Van Voorhis says:

"The changes brought out by physical and artificial means since the primitive efforts of man to initiate and perfect a system of transportation in the Monongahela valley are nowhere more prominent than within the surroundings of Belle Vernon. Let us call to mind a few of the many attempts to facilitate transportation at this point on the Monongahela river, the culmination of which stands forth the beautiful, substantial steel bridge whose free birth we have celebrated.

"The predecessor of this bridge was the old time ferry. The first so-called ferry was owned by Frederick Cooper and Noah Speers at the mouth of Maple creek, operated in 1771. Appliances for its operation consisted of the canoe invented by the Indian, and its motive power was the strong arm of the ferryman with his pike pole. History or tradition fails to describe how freight or vehicles were carried over from Cooper's landing at the mouth of Maple creek to Speers, on the opposite side of the river.

"The death of Henry Speers, the older, occurred in 1773. After his death for a time a ferry was operated by David Furnier and Henry Speers, Jr.

"Noah Speers by will dated June 2, 1832, bequeathed to Solomon Speers three acres called 'Summer House,' and the ferry, and he sold it to L. M. Speer. At the death of Henry Speers, Jr. his son Appolos, came into possession of the Washington county side of the ferry, and at his death his son Noah inherited this by will. April 1, 1870, by act of assembly a charter was granted to Noah Speers, L. M. Speers and W. F. Speers. In 1880 at the assignee's sale in bankruptcy of L. M. and W. F. Speers, Noah Speers became sole owner of the ferry, and at his death his sons, G. V. and Fred C. Speers became the owners, who sold it to the counties of Washington and Fayette.

"Before the Speers obtained full control of this ferry, the facilities for crossing were the canoe and the flat. In order to aid the regular ferryman, as early as 1797, the good old Baptist church called Enon had a flat of their own 6x24 feet for use in influencing and aiding their members to cross over to services. Four generations of ferryman have plied the oar and pole. For a century this ferry was sought by drovers in their route from west to east.

"In 1845, however, a change in the manner of operating came. Charles Bowers conceived the idea of building a ferry boat to be operated by horse power. He built a horse boat at

GOOD GAMES NEXT WEEK

Church League Season Will Close Within a Few Days.

EPISCOPALS STILL LEAD

Unless there are more postponed games the coming week the Church League season will end on Monday, August 8, when the final game will be played by the Lutherans and Washington Avenues. There is one game yet to be acted upon by the commission, one won some time ago by the Episcopalians from the Lutherans which was protested on technicality. If this is thrown out it will mean an extra game.

As the standing is at present the Episcopalians are in the lead by two games over their nearest rival, the Christians, who won from them last night. The Catholics are behind one game, in third place and the Methodists in fourth, behind one game. The Washington Avenues and the Lutherans are tied for fifth and the Baptists lead by one game over the First Presbyterians for seventh place.

The teams having more than one game to play yet are the Catholics, the Washington Avenues, the Lutherans, and the First Presbyterians. The scheduled games are Monday—Christians vs Lutherans Tuesday—Baptists vs Catholics; Wednesday—Catholics vs First Presbyterians; Thursday—First Presbyterians vs W. A. Presbyterians; Friday—Methodists vs Episcopalians; Monday, August 8—Lutherans vs Washington Avenues.

BLOODY FRACAS ON THE STREET CORNER

Considerable Blood Spilt as Result of Disagreement Today.

When at noon today Tom Barclay and a man said to be a bartender got into a fracas at the corner of McKean avenue and Fifth street, considerable blood was spilt, most of it, it is understood by Barclay. A crowd was drawn to the spot, and Barclay was arrested by Officer George McElowney who later camped on the trail of the alleged bartender, who came out of the scuffle apparently unscratched. Barclay is the noted bridge jumper, who was going to jump from the Belle Vernon bridge at the time of the celebration, but evidently got switched from his intention before he got there.

Not Them

Because of a misprint in a valley paper concerning a team playing Sunday baseball it being stated that the members of the Coal Centre M. E. church team were the offenders, the members of that denomination are much exercised, and are making wholesale corrections. It was the Coal Valley team which played but in the item it was stated that it was the Coal Centre team.

Dies at Hospital Two Weeks After Shooting Himself.

DISAPPOINTED BY GIRL

Coroner Heffran of Washington County Notified and Will Take Charge.

From the result of self-inflicted injuries Peter Veneri, 32 years old of Monessen, died at the Monessen-Charleroi hospital last evening about 10:30 o'clock. Veneri two weeks ago shot himself as the result of disappointment over being spurned by the girl to whom he had been paying attentions for some time.

On Friday evening July 15, Veneri went to call upon Mary Checchi, whom it was rumored among his friends he was to marry. She did not respond when he knocked at the door but instead sent her mother to inform the man that she could not see him any more. There upon he went into the front yard of the house and drawing a revolver from his pocket shot himself in the temple. A physician was called, and the man was sent to the Monessen-Charleroi hospital, where after a day or so, it was thought he would recover. Three or four days ago he grew worse and after that his death was hourly expected.

Veneri had no relatives in this section, but friends will attend to his burial at Belle Vernon. Coroner James T. Heffran of Washington county was notified of the man's death last night by Miss Miller, superintendent at the hospital.

Church Advertising

"I have drawn people to hear my sermons by advertising. I have attracted them with moving pictures, hot suppers, pink teas and flowers and flags. If I have had any degree of success in Spokane it is because of the liberal use of printer's ink," said Rev. Dr. James W. Kramer, pastor of First Baptist church, who came to Spokane from South Carolina two years ago. "There is something worse than sensationalism. It is the inability of the church to produce life."

The church that does not advertise is behind the times and is nursing empty pews, and he who rails against the minister for advertising is suffering for a congregation. I am not an advocate of ragtime methods or vulgar preaching, but I do plead for the church which is a humming plant of machinery, with live coals in the fire-box, smoke curling from the stack and every belt, wheel and pulley going. I believe, too, that the people need instruction and that a minister of the gospel, is first, last and all the time a teacher. There must be life."

Death Too Expensive

A committee appointed by the City club of Chicago has been collecting grim facts which throw light on the high cost of dying says the American Magazine. As everybody knows, people of small income usually give away to extravagance when a death in the family occurs. Money is spent recklessly for flowers, carriages and so on.

At the same time undertakers are believed to take advantage frequently of those who are afflicted have no time or inclination to be business-like. As the result of a suit brought in Chicago recently an undertaker's bill was reduced from $552.50 to $302.50. The undertakers make a defense of their acts which is interesting if not wholly convincing.

They say, or at least various ones of them have said in Chicago, that they are justified in making from 100 to 200 per cent profit for these reasons: The infrequency of funerals and the consequent period of idleness between cases; the large percentage of bad debts, coupled with the fact that so many of their bills must go through probate; the ever present danger of infection and loss of life in embalming.

Standard Too High

An educational expert, who has been making exhaustive investigations, states that 20,000 children annually leave the public schools of this country because they fail to keep up with the standard fixed in the various grades. This army of children goes out into the world confessing defeat, and are handicapped with the feeling and knowledge that they are below the standard, and not entitled to respect and consideration. In spite of the progress made in education and the growth of the public schools, it is manifest that something is lacking when this vast number of failures is left to grope in intellectual darkness as best they can, and it is to learn the cause that investigations are being made.

The conclusion reached by the investigator quoted, is that the standard of grade studies is too high for the average child to keep up. In the public schools of New York it was found after an investigation that for every child making rapid progress through the grades there were eight making slow progress. As the course is based on the abilities of the bright and alert pupil, these of average attainments, who constitute the vast majority, are unable to keep pace, become discouraged and drop out of school to accept a career of menial work. Without entering into a discussion of the innumerable details, the general conclusion is that the public schools to be practical should base their standard on the abilities of the average pupil, and not on what a trained instructor thinks it ought to be. The schools should be maintained for the benefit of the children and not be dependent on the whims and fads of those in charge.

VACATION AND HEALTH

It is not wholly on account of our own comfort and happiness that we should cultivate health, but because it multiplies our ability and our chances of success, says Orison Sweet Marden in "Success Magazine."

It is pitiable to see young people starting out in life with ambition to make place for themselves, and yet running the possibility of doing anything great by sacrificing health, the very thing on which they are most dependent for the attainment of their object. With robust health and a strong determination one can accomplish wonderful things; but no matter how much ambition one has, if he ruins his health by vicious habits, by leading an abnormal irregular life, he cuts off his greatest chance for accomplishing anything of moment. There are, it is true, examples of people in poor health—of invalids who have done quiet remarkable things—but think what these people might have accomplished had they had strong, vigorous constitutions and robust health. Ill-health is a perpetual handicap, and the greater one's ambition, the greater the disappointment which the inability to reach ones aim will cause.

On the other hand, robust health raises the power of every faculty, increases its efficiency, gives it a keener edge, makes it much more gripping, and multiplies the entire brain power many times. A one-talent man with a superb physique often astonishes us with his achievement, sometimes accomplishing a great deal more than a ten-talent man with poor health.

The vitality born of vigorous abounding health not only increases our self-confidence, but the confidence of others in us. It gains us credit. Bankers and jobbers who would be glad to give young men credit and help them with capital, so far as their ability and honesty are concerned, are often obliged to decline such aid on account of ill-health or some physical weakness on the part of the applicants. They may have the utmost confidence in the young men themselves but they are afraid they will break down before they get into a position to repay the money.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Charleroi People Know How to Save It.

Many Charleroi people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all disease and ache and pain due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Charleroi citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. William McBride, 508 Lincoln avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family for several years. Our first experience with them took place while we were living in Beaver Falls. A member of our family was at that time suffering from dull pains in the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills proved of great benefit and there was no return attack of the trouble for some time. About a month ago, Doan's Kidney Pills were again procured at Piper Bros.' Drug Store and they proved as beneficial as before. From our experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I do not hesitate to recommend them."

CHRISTIANS BEAT FAST EPISCOPALS

Leaders Brought Down a Peg by Decisive Drubbing.

The Christians took the game from the Episcopalists last night by a 5 to 1 score, through timely hitting, and by taking advantage of misplays of the latter bunch. The Christians looked good for the contest from the first, when they scored one tally on two hits, and an error. They got another in the third inning on three hits, and an error. The Episcopalists scored their lone one in the fifth inning. Briggs contracted a base through an error, and on a sacrifice hit went second. On Johnston's two baser he came home. The Christians not because they needed it, but more because they wanted to prove it could be done, scored three runs in the seventh inning of four hits, two of them two base bingles, a couple of errors, and the same number of stolen bases. A CURIOUS WATCH.

Made by a Clever Workman on a Challenge From Royalty.

Some years ago the czar, hearing of the marvelous inventive genius of a Polish mechanic, determined to put him to the test and accordingly caused to be forwarded to him a few copper nails, some wood shavings, a piece of broken glass, an old cracked china cup, some wire and a few crumpled board pegs. The box was accompanied by the request that the Pole should transform these unpromising articles into a timepiece.

It was a challenge and one that few watchmakers would have cared to take up. But it would have taken a harder task than this to daunt the Pole. He set to work on the unpromising materials and out of them fashioned a watch that was quickly dispatched to the czar. Just eight hours after he began his work of transformation the watch started on its journey to St. Petersburg, where it arrived safely, to the great delight of the czar.

It was a most unique timepiece, its case being made of china and its works composed of the material that had accompanied the old cup. Let it keep good time and had to be wound up only once in three or four days. So pleased was the czar that he sent for the Pole and conferred upon him several distinctions, besides granting him a pension. New York Press

A TRAGIC OLD CUSTOM.

Human Beings Once Walled Up in Building Foundations.

The practice of putting human under the foundation stone of a new building is the shadow of an older tragic custom. The money stands theoretically for the ransom of the human being who by ancient superstition should have been buried in its place. Other wise, it was held, the building would not stand firm and endure.

There was a time when this particular kind of human sacrifice had a vogue extending to most parts of the world. Even in England skeletons have been found imbedded in the bases of castle walls, and there is record of one German fortress at the building of which a child was bought from its mother with hard cash and walled into the donjon tower, the unnatural mother, according to the story, looking on the while. Effigies of human beings are still used in some parts of Europe as harmless substitutes, and in remoter and more ruthless places the old custom crops out from time to time in all its grim reality. Within the last century two children, a boy and a girl, were, it was reported, walled into a blockhouse by some laborers at Duga, Asiatic Turkey.—Westminster Gazette.

VISITING CARDS.

Names and Messages Used to Be Scribbled on Playing Cards.

It is somewhat curious that so useful an invention as the visiting card should have been unknown to society until comparatively recent times. Yet 150 years ago the carte de visite did not exist. The bellies of the seventeenth century used nothing in the shape of a name card, or "ticket," as it was afterward called. Invitations to routs and drums as well as names and addresses were written across the backs of playing cards, which in those days were made with a white reverse and innocent of the intricate pattern familiar to us in modern times.

Mary Wortley Montagu, a lady of ton, says the Comtesse de Boigne when she tells us that in 1800 Lady Harrington used to trot up and down Bond street picking up guests for a party for the same night.

A FALSE ECONOMY.

The Housewife Who Boils Her Window Shades.

Here is a new one for the frugally minded housewife:
"Whenever I have old window shades which have become too soiled to put up again," writes a housewife in a certain magazine for women, "I take them off the rollers, give them a thorough boiling, then wash and dry and from the same and"—now listen to this; they don't turn out to be piano scarfs or mantel drapes or even little girls' petticoats, but says this careful person—"I have excellent cloths, which are good for dusting, cleaning windows or drying out cloths." Now, will you listen to that—"excellent dust cloths"—and how would you like the task of boiling up a lot of old window shades? "Would be a pleasant undertaking, wouldn't it?"

There can be no question that the effort to economize is in every way commendable and, dear knows, rare enough in these days of prodigality, but there is a limit past which economy ceases to be a virtue.

There are women with whom economy has become almost a mania.

Doubtless she of the boiled window shades is suffering from such a mania, else she wouldn't be boiling up her old shades to make dusters when she ought to be standing in front of her looking glass curling her front hair or sitting down and studying her Sunday school lesson.

But this is only one example of the false economy that saves and makes over to poor purpose. Economy is doubtless a poor name for this particular sort of thing. It is, in truth, more of an overpowering desire to make something out of nothing, which generally ends in exactly the other, very much the other, way about.

Old dresses made over at great labor and expense and leftover food reheated with more eggs and butter than a new dish would be worth are examples of this same mania, which possesses many a good woman.

ANCIENT BELLS.

They Were Often Quadrangular and Made of Thin Iron Plates.

There are several old bells in Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The oldest are often quadrangular, being made of thin iron plates which have been hammered and riveted together. At the monastery of St. Gall in Switzerland the four sided bell of the Irish missionary St. Gall, who lived in the seventh century, is still preserved, but more ancient still is the bell of St. Patrick in Belfast, which is ornamented with gold and gems and silver filigree work. The curfew bell is that about which most has been written and said. It has been thought that it was only used in England, but it was quite common on the continent in the middle ages.

The ringing of bells by rope is still very popular in England, especially in the country, where almost every hamlet, however small, has its church with its peal of bells, which are often remarkably well rung. The first real peal of bells in England was sent by Pope Calixtus III. to King's college, Cambridge, and was for 300 years the largest peal in England. About the beginning of the year 1500 sets of eight bells were hung in a few of the large churches.

In the middle of the seventeenth century a man named White wrote a famous work on bells in which he introduced the system of numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., on slips of paper in different orders, according to the changes intended to be rung. It is calculated that to ring all the changes upon twenty-four bells at two strokes a second would take 117 billion years.

One of the most famous bells in the world is the first great bell of Moscow, which now stands in the middle of a square in that city and is used as a chapel. This bell was cast in 1733, but was in the earth for over a hundred years, being raised in 1836 by the Emperor Nicholas. It is nearly twenty feet high, has a circumference of sixty feet, is two feet thick and weighs at most 200 tons. The second Moscow bell, which is the largest bell in the world that is actually in use, weighs 128 tons. There are several bells extant which weigh ten tons and over, of which Big Ben, the largest bell in England, weighing between thirteen and fourteen tons, is one. Big Ben is unfortunately cracked.—London Globe.

Would Take Chances.

Mr. Philanthropist was passing a bakery when he observed a little girl gazing with longing eyes at some cakes displayed in the window. The youngster's wistful gaze was too much for Mr. Philanthropist, so he took immediate measures to satisfy her longing.

When she had in short order disposed of a rich bit of pastry she calmly asked for another.

"I should like very much to give you another," said the kindly man, "but I'm afraid it would make you sick."
"Get it for me anyhow," quickly responded the little girl. "I can git all the medicine I need at the dispensary fer nuthin'!"—New York Herald.

A Dangerous Place.

The two tramps had been particularly lucky, and, having funds in hand, they discussed plans for the night's shelter. "We can sleep under a roof if we like," said Wiggins.

"Sure we can," responded Higgins. "But some way these lodging houses make me nervous. Supposing a fire was to break out in the night?"
"You've got it right," agreed Wiggins dolefully. "It's no place for us. They'd turn the hose on us in a minute!"—Youth's Companion.

A Trying Time.
"Colonel," asked the beautiful girl, "when was the most trying moment of your life?"
"It was when I went to my wife's father for the purpose of asking him to let me have her. He was very deaf, and I had to explain the matter before twenty clerks."—Chicago Record Herald.

Eccentric Count Bertrand.
Count Bertrand, who lived in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would be taken into bed and stay there for three months. On these occasions he would see no one but his servant, who brought him his meals, and even him he forbade to speak. Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the count went to bed, and the servant, true to his instructions, said nothing of the events going on around him. One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereby, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy. Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming, "We should go to bed!" and to bed he went and stayed there until the siege was over.

ANOTHER WORLD.
This Charming Bit of Philosophy Points the Road to It.

I live in two worlds—one in which I must consider the weather and clothes and meals and bills, coming due and a host of duties and obligations, some of which weary me. It isn't really a bad world, and I haven't much ground to complain of it. It is comparatively a poor world, however, when set against that other world into which I retire with every opportunity—the glorious, free and perfect world of my imagination. The common world, the world of meals and clothes and weather, I share with everybody. No preference or special consideration is given to me. I often get a kick or a cuff that I deserve, even though I know that I earned it. But the other world is all my own. I am its creator, king and master. Nothing happens in it that does not please me; nothing exists without my consent. It revolves around me. I am its sun and center; all else is subordinate. There is no order, system or law in it that gives me the slightest trouble, for I alter, change or abolish these at my pleasure. Of course I escape whenever I can from the common everyday world in which I am so insignificant into the world which is wholly my own.—Orlando Jay Smith.

Expensive.
"Yes," said the young wife proudly, "father always gives something expensive when he makes presents."
"So I discovered when he gave you away," rejoined the young husband.—Exchange.

The Limit.
Worthless Husband: Going to leave me, are you, Molly? Didn't you take me for better or worse? Long Suffering Wife: Yes, but you are absolutely the worst. I didn't take you for that.—Chicago Tribune.

It is the temper of the highest hearts like the palm tree to strive most upward when most burdened.

Not So Absurd.
"How absurd!"
"What's absurd?"
"Five years are supposed to have elapsed since the last act, and that man is wearing the same overcoat!"
"Nothing absurd about that. He's taking the part of a married man, isn't he?"

Spiteful.

THE OLD MASTERS.

How Modern Artists Make a New Painting an Antique.

Europe is full of artists who, as far as line and color go, can turn admirable copies of anything. These copies are made on old canvases mounted on a framework of old wood, and when the paint is dry the picture is put through an ingenious aging process. A certain kind of varnish gives a ripe golden tone, and deepening of shadows, with a suggestion of the scarring of centuries, is had by the scratching of the surface with a sharp edge—that is obtained by rubbing the picture carefully in an oven or by applying a plaque of metal on the canvas and striking it gently with a hammer. Worm holes in frame or panels are merely a matter of time, and are made in and afterward picked out. And dyed specks to deceive the flies themselves may be had by the judicious scatter of India ink.

No doubt to the sure connoisseur there is something hard and cold about the copies, something vaguely unsatisfying, but no one can deny that they are enormously like the originals—so much like them that the great museums of Europe, all unsuspecting, have hung their walls with these low masterpieces of yesterday. It is said, for instance, that Rembrandt's portrait of Sobieski in the Louvre is not the original at all, but only a copy, the original being in Russia.—Cleveland Model in Success.

A Story That Varies.

There is a story more or less attributed of a young bride on her wedding day playing the game of hide-and-seek and concealing herself in one of these ancient carved chests of large size. After she had got in the lid closed and she found herself unable to raise it again, for it fastened with a spring, and she was shut in. Search was made for her in every quarter but the chest, and great perplexity and dismay were caused by her disappearance. It was not till years after, when chance led to the opening of the chest, that the body of the young bride was discovered and the mystery of her disappearance solved.

The story is told in so many places that it may be questioned whether it is true of any one of them. However, it is a tale of a palace in Modena. The chest in which the poor bride was found is shown at Brambilla, in Hampshire, the residence of Sir John Cope. Another similar chest with precisely the same story attached to it was long shown at Marwell Old Hall, between Winchester and Bishop's Waltham.

The folk tale of Cuckin' or Peckin' d'Am represents the girl flying with her bridal dresses from a marriage that is repugnant to her, and as this tale is found all over Europe it may have metamorphosed itself into that of the bride who got into a chest and died there.—Cornhill Magazine

Detecting a Thief.
Some of the stories in the "Tales of the Holy Land" seem to be at least founded on fact. And, indeed, when we come down to quite recent times we find undoubted genuine stories that might have been told of the days of the caliphs.

Here is one of "Arabian Nights": A celebrated Jew, a companion of the Caliph, had been robbed and reported that the Egyptian owner of a shop had promised redress. The next day he came to the market shop and in the presence of a great crowd ordered the executioner to give the door a hundred lashes. Then he stooped as if to listen. "The door tells nonsense," he cried, "another hundred!" He stooped again. "The same tale; the door persists that the thief is somewhere in the crowd of honest people and that he has some of the dust and cobwebs from the shop on his turban!" He had his eye on the crowd and saw a man hastily raise his hand to brush his eye. The man was arrested and confessed his guilt.

A Chromatic Love Affair.
"Marooned!" muttered the villain, turning white and striking his forehead. Violet, pearl of women, had refused him again.

He bargained into a brown study, wondering how he were to go on to win any woman's love. Perhaps she had turned to his prematurely gray hair or could it be that the cardinal virtues of his rival outweighed his old gold? The hero, entering, black as a thunder cloud, readily solved the mystery. "There's a yellow streak in you!" he cried. "In the hope of winning me betrothed, Violet, you have jilted, Alice, and it has made Alice blue!" The villain rose, madder than a beet, purpling with rage beneath his tan. But before he could speak the hero had poked him with his sword. Violet screamed. Terror might be. But her lover soothed her. "Red of him at last!" he murmured, folding her in his arms and kissing her cherry lips as the crimson sun sank in the west, partially obscured by the London smoke.

An Expert Opinion of Skin Diseases.

A prominent national expert on skin diseases whose name you are familiar with says that in all his scientific experience he has never found so hard a disease to conquer as eczema. Yet he does not hesitate to recommend Zemo as a most successful remedy for the treatment of Eczema, itching skin diseases, dandruff, pimples, blackheads and all other diseases of the skin and scalp. He says that not only do its curative qualities make it popular but also the fact that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A great improvement over the old style greasy salves and lotions which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that causes the disease. Zemo draws the germs life that cause the disease. Zemo draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. Mr. Piper will gladly supply those who call with a free sample bottle of Zemo and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin diseases and how to cure yourself at home with Zemo.

HAD BULLET IN BODY TWO YEARS

Shot in an unknown manner almost two years ago Albert Jackson, a Monessen coal miner had until Thursday carried a 32 calibre bullet in his right side.

Although the missile caused him great pain at times he steadfastly refused to be operated upon, not out of fear as he has repeatedly asked his father to take a razor and probe for the bullet, but he disliked the idea of being put on the operating table.

Following a hard day's work the pain in his side became intense and he finally decided to go to Donora and have an operation performed. Refusing to take ether or any other anesthetic he allowed the physicians to probe for some time before they located the bullet, embedded over two inches in the body. He returned home and now is in apparently as good condition as ever.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE ELOPEMENT SEQUEL

The sequel to a sensational elopement two years ago, in which some of the stirring scenes were enacted in Washington and Greene counties, has culminated in the filing in Fayette county courts of an application for a divorce by S. Clark Breckenridge against his wife, Ethel Breckenridge, on the ground of desertion.

The defendant is the daughter of Dr. H. J. English of Brownsville. The elopement took place from Washington, Breckenridge taking his bride to be from Canadachiefs in an automobile to that place, where a B. and O. train was boarded and the knot was tied in West Virginia. Efforts were made by the father of the girl to prevent the marriage, and upon the return of the couple to Brownsville, it is alleged that relatives tried to forcibly separate Breckenridge from his bride. Finally after residing with his relatives for several months, she was persuaded to go to her father's home, where she has since resided.

Fredericktown, the idea being suggested by the completion of Lock 4, insuring a sufficient depth of water.

"This boat was succeeded by the 'Belle Vernon' in 1852 or 1853, built by L. M. Speers at his boatyard. Two horses were the motive power of both boats. In 1858 the 'Belle Vernon' was succeeded by the 'Polly Smith' operated by a steam engine, with Capt. James French master. This was a failure, financially, and gave place to the rope ferry operated by hand power. After a time it was succeeded by a wire cable run by steam, which was sold to the bridge company several years after the completion of the bridge.

"The erection of the bridge was begun the 7th of August, 1894, and was opened to travel the 1st day of January, 1905. In the 50 years of my professional life it was my lot to cross over the old ferry at least 3,500 round trips in the old style, paying for the privilege from a 'tip' and a levie to 50 cents and some times above that amount, often times in the night rowing myself.

"The opening of the bridge free from toll by the counties of Washington and Fayette marks a new era in the history of Belle Vernon and surrounding towns and adjacent county."

STONE'S ATTEMPT NOT SUCCESSFUL

Monongahela Man Discharged from Hospital None Worse for Poison.

The attempt of Robert Emerson Stone, the telegraph operator, to commit suicide on Wednesday evening at Monongahela seems to have had the desired result as far as he is concerned. He has been dismissed from the hospital, has had a talk with his bride of a few weeks, bridged the chasm between them, patched it all up and the reconciliation is complete. They have gone back together and perhaps if we could turn back to the last chapter it would end "and lived happy ever after."

It is understood that the general opinion is that Stone never took the laudanum, but just worked a bluff. In all events he is able to be about.

However, an individual effort will be made by the members of the association within the next few days to raise sufficient funds to secure the airship and also place the association upon a good financial basis.

Head-on Collision at Fayette City Ties up Traffic.

FOUR MEN SLIGHTLY HURT

When a coal train collided head-on with a train of empties on the Arnold City branch of the P. and L. E. railroad at the north end of Fayette City yesterday, two engines and many cars were damaged and traffic was tied up for five hours. Four persons were injured, but none seriously. The injured are:

Engineer Jesse Wadsworth and C. C. Sprague; Firemen W. H. Douglass and Harry Johnson.

The trains met on a culvert above the West Newton pike and although the rolling stock did not leave the roadbed, coal and debris falling on the pike blocked vehicle traffic. The cause of the accident is not known.

The crews of both locomotives seeing the approaching danger in time, jumped and received but slight cuts and bruises. They were able to assist in clearing away the wreck.

FIVE POLLING PLACES FAVORED FOR DONORA

Commissioners Will Hold Second Meeting Next Week to Formulate Their Report to Court.

Tom P. Sloan, Theo. J. Allen of Charleroi and J. V. Cooper of Fallowfield township, commissioners to investigate the matter of re-division of the voting precincts at Donora have arranged for a second meeting to be held at Donora next Wednesday when they will in all probability formulate their report to the court. They are said to favor five precincts for the borough instead of four as petitioned.

The suggestion of the petitioners was to make a division at Second street, Sixth street and at Eighth, making the Eastern and Western boundary lines of the borough the extreme ends of the precincts. The commissioners favored one precinct along the Western end of the borough, so that it would not be necessary for residents of that part of town to come off the hill to vote.

The first meeting was held Wednesday of this week when the commissioners heard testimony and took a tour of the town to ascertain the need of new polling places. They have until the third Monday in August make their report to the court.

Dr. Van Voorhis Finds Curious Facts in History of Speers Family.

Dr. John S. Van Voorhis of Belle Vernon in his interesting historical references during the bridge freeing ceremonies recently followed the record of ferries from the time the region was first settled, in 1740. It is a curious story, beginning with dog-out canoes and relapsing to that stage after progressive improvement for more than a century. Dr. Van Voorhis says:

"The changes brought out by physical and artificial means since the primitive efforts of man to initiate and perfect a system of transportation in the Monongahela valley are nowhere more prominent than within the surroundings of Belle Vernon. Let us call to mind a few of the many attempts to facilitate transportation at this point on the Monongahela river, the culmination of which stands forth the beautiful, substantial steel bridge whose free birth we have celebrated.

"The predecessor of this bridge was the old time ferry. The first so-called ferry was owned by Frederick Cooper and Noah Speers at the mouth of Maple creek, operated in 1771. Appliances for its operation consisted of the canoe invented by the Indian, and its motive power was the strong arm of the ferryman with his pole. History or tradition fails to describe how freight or vehicles were carried over from Cooper's landing at the mouth of Maple creek to Speers, on the opposite side of the river.

"The death of Henry Speers, the older, occurred in 1778. After his death for a time a ferry was operated by David Furnier and Henry Speers, Jr.

"Noah Speers by will dated June 2, 1832, bequeathed to Solomon Speers three acres called 'Summer House,' and the ferry, and he sold it to L. M. Speers. At the death of Henry Speers, Jr. his son Appolos, came into possession of the Washington county side of the ferry, and at his death his son Noah inherited this by will. April 1, 1870, by act of assembly a charter was granted to Noah Speers, L. M. Speers and W. F. Speers. In 1880 at the assignee's sale in bankruptcy of L. M. and W. F. Speers, Noah Speers became sole owner of the ferry, and at his death his sons, G. V. and Fred C. Speers became the owners, who sold it to the counties of Washington and Fayette.

"Before the Speers obtained full control of this ferry, the facilities for crossing were the canoe and the flat. In order to aid the regular ferryman, as early as 1797, the good old Baptist church called Enon had a flat of their own 6x24 feet for use in influencing and aiding their members to cross over to services. Four generations of ferriers have plied the pole and pole. For a century this ferry was sought by drovers in their route from west to east.

"In 1845, however, a change in the manner of operating came. Charles Bowers conceived the idea of building a ferry boat to be operated by horse power. He built a horse boat at

Considerable Blood Spilt as Result of Disagreement Today.

When at noon today Tom Barclay and a man said to be a bartender got into a fracas at the corner of McKean avenue and Fifth street, considerable blood was spilt, most of it, it is understood by Barclay. A crowd was drawn to the spot, and Barclay was arrested by Officer George McDowd who later camped on the trail of the alleged bartender, who came out of the scrape apparently unscratched. Barclay is the noted bridge jumper, who was going to jump from the Belle Vernon bridge at the time of the celebration, but evidently got switched from his intention before he got there.

E. church team were the offenders, the members of that denomination are much worried, and are making wholesale corrections. It was the Coal Valley team which played but in the item it was stated that it was the Coal Centre team.

Dies at Hospital Two Weeks After Shooting Himself.

DISAPPOINTED BY GIRL

Coroner Heffran of Washington County Notified and Will Take Charge.

From the result of self-inflicted injuries Peter Vennari, 32 years old of Monessen, died at the Monessen-Charleroi hospital last evening about 10:30 o'clock. Vennari two weeks ago shot himself as the result of disappointment over being spurned by the girl to whom he had been paying attentions for some time.

On Friday evening July 15, Vennari went to call upon Mary Checci, whom it was rumored among his friends he was to marry. She did not respond when he knocked at the door but instead sent her mother to inform the man that she could not see him any more. There upon he went into the front yard of the house and drawing a revolver from his pocket shot himself in the temple. A physician was called, and the man was sent to the Monessen-Charleroi hospital, where after a day or so, it was thought he would recover. Three or four days ago he grew worse and after that his death was hourly expected.

Vennari had no relatives in this section, but friends will attend to his burial at Belle Vernon. Coroner James T. Heffran of Washington county was notified of the man's death last night by Miss Miller, superintendent at the hospital.

It is not expected to be great while until Mrs. Hamilton, Anna Hamilton and Miss Blanche Matheney who were injured in the Beechwood Crossing accident the later part of June, will be discharged from the Monessen-Charleroi hospital, where they have since been confined. Mrs. Hamilton is the only one of the injured persons who is not able to be up and out of bed, both Miss Anna Hamilton and Miss Matheney being convalescent. The latter has been having some trouble with her left arm which was broken, it not healing properly. The arm was wired a few days ago.

Prohib Leader Says He Will Not Support Berry

GIVES THE REASONS WHY

According to a statement given out last night by Rev. S. C. Swallow, the Prohibition party leader of Dauphin county his party will give practically no support to the new Keystone ticket, headed by William H. Berry. Dr. Swallow said:

"We cannot support a man who is a Prohibitionist in one campaign, an advocate of a candidate who puts the brewery and the school on a party in the next and is a local optionist in the next one.

"Prohibition and local option have nothing in common. No sir, we are against Mr. Berry's election, first, last, and all the while, just as we are against the election of the Democratic and Republican and any other candidates.

DOES ANY PERSON WANT NICE BABY?

Good Home Desired for One at Monessen-Charleroi Hospital.

Is there anybody who wants to adopt a healthy, good-looking, three week's old female baby? If so, they should inquire at the Monessen-Charleroi hospital where there is such an infant to be provided with a home. The child's mother is not at the hospital, and has no place herself to go or to take the baby, and with true mother love, desires to place it in a good home. She is of German descent. The hospital officials are authority for the statement that the infant is about as good natured child as they ever saw.

Church Advertising

"I have drawn people to hear my sermons by advertising. I have attracted them with moving pictures, hot suppers, pink teas and flowers and daisies. If I have had any degree of success in Spokane it is because of the liberal use of printer's ink," said Rev. Dr. James W. Kramer, pastor of First Baptist church, who came to Spokane from South Carolina two years ago. "There is something worse than sensationalism. It is the inability of the church to produce life."

The church that does not advertise is behind the times and is nursing empty pews, and he who rails against the minister for advertising is suffering for a congregation. I am not an advocate of ragtime methods or vulgar preaching, but I do plead for the church which is a humming plant of machinery, with live coals in the firebox, smoke curling from the stack and every belt, wheel and pulley going. I believe, too, that the people need instruction and that a minister of the gospel, first, last and all the time a teacher. There must be life."

Death Too Expensive

A committee appointed by the City club of Chicago has been collecting grim facts which throw light on the high cost of dying says the American Magazine. As everybody knows, people of small income usually give away to extravagance when a death in the family occurs. Money is spent recklessly for flowers, carriages and so on.

At the same time undertakers are believed to take advantage frequently of those who when afflicted have no time or inclination to be business-like.
As the result of a suit brought in Chicago recently an undertaker's bill was reduced from $552.50 to $302.60.
The undertakers make a defense of their acts which is interesting if not wholly convincing.

They say, or at least various ones of them have said in Chicago, that they are justified in making from 100 to 200 per cent profit for these reasons: The infrequency of funerals and the consequent period of idleness between cases; the large percentage of bad debts, coupled with the fact that so many of their bills must go through probate; the ever present danger of infection and loss of life in embal-ming.

Standard Too High

An educational expert, who has been making exhaustive investigations, states that 20,000 children annually leave the public schools of this country because they fail to keep up with the standard fixed in the various grades. This army of children goes out into the world confessing defeat, and are handicapped with the feeling and knowledge that they are below the standard, and not entitled to respect and consideration. In spite of the progress made in education and the growth of the public schools, it is manifest that something is lacking, when this vast number of failures is left to grope in intellectual darkness as best they can, and it is to learn the cause that investigations are being made.

The conclusion reached by the investigator quoted, is that the standard of grade studies is too high for the average child to keep up. In the public schools of New York it was found after an investigation that for every child making rapid progress through the grades there were eight making slow progress. As the course is based on the abilities of the bright and alert pupil, these of average attainments, who constitute the vast majority, are unable to keep pace, become discouraged and drop out of school to accept a career of menial work. Without entering into a discussion of the innumerable details, the general conclusion is that the public schools to be practical should base their standard on the abilities of the average pupil, and not on what a trained instructor thinks it ought to be. The schools should be maintained for the benefit of the children and not be dependent on the whims and fads of those in charge.

VACATION AND HEALTH

It is not wholly on account of our own comfort and happiness that we should cultivate health, but because it multiplies our ability and our chances of success, says Orison Sweet Marden in "Success Magazine."

It is pitiable to see young people starting out in life with ambition to make place for themselves, and yet running the possibility of doing anything great by sacrificing health, the very thing on which they are most dependent for the attainment of their object. With robust health and a strong determination one can accomplish wonderful things; but no matter how much ambition one has, if he ruins his health by vicious habits, by leading an abnormal irregular life, he cuts off his greatest chance for accomplishing anything of moment. There are, it is true, examples of people in poor health—of invalids who have done quiet remarkable things—but think what these people might have accomplished had they had strong, vigorous constitutions and robust health. Ill-health is a perpetual handicap, and the greater one's ambition, the greater the disappointment which the inability to reach one's aim will cause.

On the other hand, robust health raises the power of every faculty, increases its efficiency, gives it a keener edge, makes it much more gripping, and multiplies the entire brain power many times. A one-talent man with a superb physique often astonishes us with his achievement, sometimes accomplishing a great deal more than a ten-talent man with poor health.

The vitality born of vigorous abounding health not only increases our self-confidence, but the confidence of others in us. It gains us credit.
Bankers and jobbers who would be glad to give young men credit and help them with capital, so far as their ability and honesty are concerned, are often obliged to decline such aid on account of ill-health or some physical weakness on the part of the applicants. They may have the utmost confidence in the young men themselves but they are afraid they will break down before they get into a position to repay the money.

LADIES' LEAGUE TO PRODUCE PLAYLETT

Entertainment Will be Given at School Hall as a Benefit.

The Ladies League of the Methodist Episcopal church is making preparations to give an entertainment at School Hall on Tuesday evening, August 9, when they will produce "Rodger Procter." The entertainment is a playlet of heart interest, being a story of a blind lover, who after great tribulation regained his sight, and was able to view conditions as they were. The entertainment is replete with rich moral teaching, and the best persons possible to portray the various characters have been secured.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and
Some Charleroi People Know How to Save It.

Many Charleroi people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all disease and ache and pain due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Charleroi citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. William McBride, 508 Lincoln avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in our family for several years. Our first experience with them took place while we were living in Beaver Falls.
A member of our family was at that time suffering from dull pains in the small of the back and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills proved of great benefit and there was no return attack of the trouble for some time. About a month ago, Doan's Kidney Pills were again procured at Piper Bros.' Drug Store and they proved as beneficial as before.
From our experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I do not hesitate to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company,

Leaders Brought Down a Peg
by Decisive Drubbing.

The Christians took the game from the Episcopalists last night by a 5 to 1 score, through timely hitting, and by taking advantage of misplays of the latter bunch. The Christians looked good for the contest from the first, when they scored one tally on two hits, and an error. They got another in the third inning on three hits, and an error. The Episcopalists scored their lone one in the fifth inning. Briggs contracted a base through an error, and on a sacrifice hit went second.
On Johnston's two baser he came home. The Christians not because they needed it, but more because they wanted to prove it could be done, scored three runs in the seventh inning of four hits, two of them two base bingles, a couple of errors, and the same number of stolen bases. The score:

A CURIOUS WATCH.

Made by a Clever Workman on a Challenge From Royalty.

Some years ago the czar, bearing of the marvelous inventive genius of a Polish mechanic, determined to put him to the test and accordingly caused to be forwarded to him a few copper nails, some wood shavings, a piece of broken glass, an old cracked china cup, some wire and a few crumpled board pegs. The box was accompanied by the request that the Pole should transform these unpromising articles into a timepiece.

It was a challenge and one that few watchmakers would have cared to take up. But it would have taken a harder task than this to daunt the Pole. He set to work on the unpromising materials and out of them fashioned a watch that was quickly dispatched to the czar. Just eight hours after he began his work of transformation the watch started on its journey to St. Petersburg, where it arrived safely, to the great delight of the czar.

It was a most unique timepiece, its case being made of china and its works composed of the material that had accompanied the watch. Yet it kept good time and had to be wound up only once in three or four days. So pleased was the czar that he sent for the Pole and conferred upon him several distinctions, besides granting him a pension.—New York Press

A TRAGIC OLD CUSTOM.

Human Beings Once Walled Up In Building Foundations.

The practice of putting money under the foundation stone of a new building is the shadow of an older tragic custom. The money stands theoretically for the ransom of the human being who by ancient superstition should have been buried in its place. Otherwise, it was held, the building would not stand firm and endure.

There was a time when this particular kind of human sacrifice had a rogue extending to most parts of the world. Even in England skeletons have been found imbedded in the bases of castle walls, and there is record of one German fortress at the building of which a child was bought from its mother with hard cash and walled into the donjon tower, the unnatural mother, according to the story, looking on the while. Effigies of human beings are still used in some parts of Europe as harmless substitutes, and in remoter and more ruthless places the old custom crops out from time to time in all its grim reality. Within the last century two children, a boy and a girl, were, it was reported, walled into a blockhouse by some laborers at Duga, Asiatic Turkey.—Westminster Gazette

VISITING CARDS.

Names and Messages Used to Be Scribbled on Playing Cards.

It is somewhat curious that so useful an invention as the visiting card should have been unknown to society until comparatively recent times. Yet 150 years ago the carte de visite did not exist. The belles of the seventeenth century used nothing in the shape of a name card, or "ticket."
As it was afterward called. Invitations to routs and drums as well as names and addresses were written across the backs of playing cards.
In those days were made with a white reverse and innocent of the intricate pattern familiar to us in modern times.

Mary Wortley Montagu, a lady of ton, says the Connoisseur, would be apt to use a red playing card—a queen of hearts—for ordinary social purposes, while an amorous beau inscribed his name and the most tender of inquiries on the back of a jack of spades. The great world of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was a small world. It was rigidly exclusive. Living in the same quarter of the town, the quality sent each other scribbled messages by the hand of a favorite page. Society, in a word, was informal in the midst of stately formal-ties, and we have no difficulty in believing the Comtesse de Boigne when she tells us that in 1800 Lady Harrington used to trot up and down Bond street plucking up guests for a party for the same night.

A FALSE ECONOMY.

The Housewife Who Boils Her Window Shades.

Here is a new one for the frugal-minded housewife:

"Whenever I have old window shades which have become too soiled to put up again," writes a housewife in a certain magazine for women, "I take them off the rollers, give them a thorough boiling, then wash and dry and iron the same and"—now listen to this; they don't turn out to be plain scarfs or mantel drapes or even little girls' petticoats, but says this careful person—
"I have excellent cloths, which are good for dusting, cleaning windows or drying cut glass." Now, will you listen to that—"excellent dust cloths"— and how would you like the task of boiling up a lot of old widow shades?
"Would be a pleasant undertaking, wouldn't it?"

There can be no question that the effort to economize in every way commendable and, dear knows, rare enough in these days of prodigality, but there is a limit past which economy ceases to be a virtue.

There are women with whom economy has become almost a mania.

At the house of the kind woman shades is suffering from such a malady, else she wouldn't be boiling up her old shades to make dusters when she ought to be standing in front of her looking glass curling her front hair or sitting down and studying her Sunday school lesson.

But this is only one example of the false economy that saves and makes over to poor purpose. Economy is doubtless a poor name for this particular sort of thing. It is, in truth, more of an overpowering desire to make something out of nothing, which generally ends in exactly the other, very much the other, way about.

Old dresses made over at great labor and expense and leftover food reheated with more eggs and butter than a new dish would be worth are examples of this same mania, which possesses many a good woman.

ANCIENT BELLS.

They Were Often Quadrangular and Made of Thin Iron Plates.

There are several old bells in Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The oldest are often quadrangular, being made of thin iron plates which have been hammered and riveted together. At the monastery of St. Gall in Switzerland the four sided bell of the Irish missionary St. Gall, who lived in the seventh century, is still preserved, but more ancient still is the bell of St. Patrick in Belfast, which is ornamented with gold and gems and silver filigree work.

The curfew bell is that about which most has been written and said. It has been thought that it was only used in England, but it was quite common on the continent in the middle ages.

The ringing of bells by rope is still very popular in England, especially in the country, where almost every hamlet, however small, has its church with its peal of bells, which are often remarkably well rung. The first real peal of bells in England was sent by Pope Calixtus III. to King's college, Cambridge, and was for 300 years the largest peal in England. About the beginning of the year 1500 sets of eight bells were hung in a few of the large churches.

In the middle of the seventeenth century a man named White wrote a famous work on bells in which he introduced the system of numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., on slips of paper in different orders, according to the changes intended to be rung. It is calculated that to ring all the changes upon twenty-four bells at two strokes a second would take 117 billion years.

One of the most famous bells in the world is the first great bell of Moscow, which now stands in the middle of a square in that city and is used as a chapel. This bell was cast in 1733, but was in the earth for over a hundred years, being raised in 1830 by the Emperor Nicholas. It is nearly twenty feet high, has a circumference of sixty feet, is two feet thick and weighs at most 200 tons. The second Moscow bell, which is the largest bell in the world that is actually in use, weighs 128 tons. There are several bells extant which weigh ten tons and over, of which Big Ben, the largest bell in England, weighing between thirteen and fourteen tons, is one. Big Ben is unfortunately cracked.—London Globe

Would Take Chances.

Mr. Philanthropist was passing a bakery when he observed a little girl gazing with longing eyes at some cakes displayed in the window. The youngster's wistful gaze was too much for Mr. Philanthropist, so he took immediate measures to satisfy her longing.

When she had in short order disposed of a rich bit of pastry she calmly asked for another.
"I should like very much to give you another," said the kindly man, "but I'm afraid it would make you sick."
"Get it for me anyhow," quickly responded the little girl. "I can get all

A Dangerous Place.

"Sure we can," responded Higgins,
"but some way these lodging houses make me nervous. Supposing a fire was to break out in the night?"
"You've got it right," agreed Wig-

Eccentric Count Bertrand.
Count Bertrand, who lived in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would be taken himself to bed and stay there for three months. On these occasions he would see no one but his servant, who brought him his meals, and even him he forbade to speak. Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the count went to bed, and the servant, true to his instructions, said nothing of the events going on around him. One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereupon, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy. Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming, "We should go to bed!" and to bed he went and stayed there until the siege was over.

ANOTHER WORLD.
This Charming Bit of Philosophy Points the Road to It.
I live in two worlds—one in which I must consider the weather and clothes and meals and bills coming due and a host of duties and obligations, some of which weary me. It isn't really a bad world, and I haven't much ground to complain of it. It is comparatively a poor world, however, when set against that other world into which I retire with every opportunity—the glorious, free and perfect world of my imagination. The common world, the world of meals and clothes and weather, I share with everybody. No preference or special consideration is given to me. I often get a kick or a cuff that I despise, even though I know that I earn it. But the other world is all my own. I am its creator, king and master. Nothing happens in it that does not please me; nothing exists without my consent. It revolves around me. I am its sun and center; all else is subordinate. There is no order, system or law in it that gives me the slightest trouble, for I alter, change or abolish these at my pleasure. Of course I escape whenever I can from the common everyday world in which I am so insignificant into the world which is wholly my own.—Orlando Jay Smith.

Expensive.

"So I discovered when he gave you away," rejoined the young husband.—Exchange.

"What's absurd?"

"Nothing absurd about that. He's taking the part of a married man, isn't he?"

THE OLD MASTERS.

Europe is full of artists who, as far as the old masters go, can turn out admirable copies of anything. These copies are made on old canvases mounted on a framework of old wood, and when the paint is dry the picture is put through an ingenious aging process. A certain kind of varnish gives a ripe golden tone, and deepening of shadows, with a suggestion of the soil of centuries, is had by the wearing of flint or pumice. As for the cracked paint surface—sure sign of age—that is obtained by taking the picture carefully in an oven or by laying a plaque of metal on the canvas and striking it gently with a hammer. Worm holes in frame or panels are merely a matter of fine shot fired in and afterward picked out. And fly specks to deceive the flies themselves may be had by the judicious spatter of India ink.
No doubt to the sure connoisseur there is something hard and cold about the copies, something vaguely unsatisfying, but no one can deny that they are enormously like the originals—so much like them that the great museums of Europe all accept them as genuine masterpieces of yesterday. It is said, for instance, that Rembrandt's portrait of Salskiss in the Louvre is not the original at all, but only a copy, the original being in Russia.—Cleveland Model in Success.

A Story That Varies.
There is a story more or less attributed to a young bride on her wedding day playing the game of hide-and-seek and concealing herself in one of those ancient carved chests of large size. After she had got in the lid closed and she found herself unable to raise it again, for it fastened with a spring and she was shut in. Search was made for her in every quarter but the chest one, and great perplexity and dismay were caused by her disappearance. It was not till years after, when chance led to the opening of the chest that the body of the young bride was discovered and the mystery of her disappearance solved.
The story is found in so many places that it may be questioned whether it is true of any one of them. Legend tells it of a palace in Modena. The chest in which the poor bride was found is shown at Bramhill, in Hampshire, the residence of Sir John Vere. Another similar chest with precisely the same story attached to it was long shown at Marwell Old Hall, between Winchester and Bishop's Waltham. The folk tale of Catkin or Peter d'Ang represents the girl lying in her bridal dresses from a marriage that is repugnant to her, and as this tale is found all over Europe it may have metamorphosed itself into that of the bride who got into a chest and died there.—Cornhill Magazine.

Detecting a Thief.
Some of the stories in the "Fables of the Holy Land" seem to be at least founded on fact. And indeed, when we come down to quite recent times we find undoubtedly genuine stories that might have been told of the days of the califas.
Here is one of them: A pasha complained that his horse had been robbed and reported that the Egyptian owner, who had not brought security, was a thief. The pasha promised redress. The next day he came to the market, and in the presence of a great crowd ordered the executioner to give the thief a hundred lashes. Then he stooped as if to listen. "The thief tells nonsense," he cried, "another hundred!" He stooped again. The same tale: the thief persisted that the horse had been stolen by the crowd of honest people and that he was some of the dust and cobwebs from the shop on his tailcoat. He had his eye on the crowd and saw a man hastily raise his hand to brush his face. The man was arrested and confessed his guilt.

A Chromatic Love Affair.
"Marquand" muttered the villain, turning white and striking his forehead. Violet, pearl of women, had refused him again. He stepped into a brown study, wondering as he went to green to what woman's love. Perhaps she objected to his prematurely gray hair or could it be that the cardinal virtues of his rival outweighed his old gold? The hero entering, black as a thunder cloud, readily solved the mystery. "There's a yellow streak in you!" cried. "In the hope of winning a betrothed, Violet, you have killed Alice, and it has made Alice blue!" The villain rose, madder than a hornet, purpling with rage beneath his tan. But before he could speak the hero had pinked him with his sword. Violet screamed. Terror caught her. "Red of him at last!" he threatened, folding her in his arms and kissing her cherry lips as the crimson sun sank in the west, partially obscured by the London smoke. Epilogue. Orange blossom.—Los Angeles Times.

HAD BULLET IN BODY TWO YEARS

Shot in an unknown manner almost two years ago Albert Jackson, a Monessen coal miner had until Thursday carried a 32 calibre bullet in his right side.

Although the missile caused him great pain at times he steadfastly refused to be operated upon, not out of fear as he has repeatedly asked his father to take a razor and probe for the bullet, but he disliked the idea of being put on the operating table.

Following a hard day's work the pain in his side became intense and he finally decided to go to Donora and have an operation performed. Refusing to take ether or any other anaesthetic he allowed the physicians to probe for some time before they located the bullet, embedded over two inches in the body. He returned home and now is in apparently as good condition as ever.

The sequel to a sensational elopement two years ago, in which some of the stirring scenes were enacted in Washington and Greene counties, has culminated in the filing in Fayette county courts of an application for a divorce by S. Clark Breckenridge against his wife, Ethel Breckenridge, on the ground of desertion.

The defendant is the daughter of Dr. H. J. English of Brownsville. The elopement took place from Washington, Breckenridge taking his bride-to-be from Carnichaels in an automobile to that place, where a B. and O. train was boarded and the knot was tied in West Virginia. Efforts were made by the father of the girl to prevent the marriage, and upon the return of the couple to Brownsville, it is alleged that relatives tried to forcibly separate Breckenridge from his bride. Finally after residing with his relatives for several months, she was persuaded to go to her father's home, where she has since resided.

Fredericktown, the idea being suggested by the completion of Lock 1, insuring a sufficient depth of water.

"This boat was succeeded by the 'Belle Vernon' in 1852 or 1853, built by L. M. Speers at his boatyard. Two horses were the motive power of both boats. In 1858 the 'Belle Vernon' was succeeded by the 'Polly Smith' operated by a steam engine, with Capt. James French master. This was a failure, financially, and gave place to the rope ferry operated by hand power. After a time it was succeeded by a wire cable run by steam, which was sold to the bridge company several years after the completion of the bridge.

The erection of the bridge was begun the 7th of August, 1894, and was opened to travel the 1st day of January, 1905. In the 50 years of my professional life it was my lot to cross over the old ferry at least 3,500 round trips in the old style, paying for the privilege from a 'kip' and a levie' to 50 cents and some times above that amount, often times in the night rowing myself.

"The opening of the bridge free from toll by the counties of Washington and Fayette marks a new era in the history of Belle Vernon and surrounding towns and adjacent county."

STONE'S ATTEMPT NOT SUCCESSFUL

Monongahela Man Discharged from Hospital None Worse for Poison.

The attempt of Robert Emerson Stone, the telegraph operator, to commit suicide on Wednesday evening at Monongahela seems to have had the desired result as far as he is concerned. He has been dismissed from the hospital, has had a talk with his bride of a few weeks, bridged the chasm between them, patched it all up and the reconciliation is complete. They have gone back together and perhaps if we could turn back to the last chapter it would end "and lived happy ever after."

It is understood that the general opinion is that Stone never took the laudanum, but just worked a bluff. In all events he is able to be about.
